

hmi

MARIO MELENDEZ, 'MAJI'
ESTUDIANTE NORTEAMERICANO

Is Anyone There?

To the man who responded to me two weeks ago, "Hats off to you!" You demonstrated exactly this column's objective- the destruction of stereotypes, cultural discriminations, etc. Yes, you ALL are welcome to join the fun and share this column with me.

In an effort to establish equality for all students, foreign and native, I welcome all readers to send guest articles- in ALL languages. Keep in mind that this is a University paper, and should be treated as such (certain restrictions do apply!).

The aim here is to put an end to the "Official Language" ideal, and to clarify that no any language is superior to another. Whether you speak French, English, Spanish or for that matter, use Hyroglyphics, is not important to me. What is important however, is to understand that we are MANY in this world. This is my offer to the students!

Although English is likely the most widely spoken language, let us not forget Latin, French, and Spanish were just as important at one time. If we recognize this, we will better understand that one day another language will surpass English and assume a fundamental role in economies and politics. Though I advocate the English language in this column, I am also a strong advocate of the study of foreign languages in general and Spanish in particular.

I find it strange however, that students outside the United States and American colleagues are a bit timid to have the

